SPLENDID COMEDY
IS AT NEW EMPIRE

"Up in Mabel's Room" Commences Three Day Engagement—Many Laughs

The Little Theatre Players of Chicago, will offer the first performance of their second play of the current week at the Empire Theatre this evening at eight-thirty. "Up in Mabel's Room," is a farce-comedy filled with sparkling lines from the very first minute to the final drop of the curtain on the last act. Although it has a name that would lead one to think that "Mabel's Room" is the scene of many terrible things, the actual name turns out to have very little to do with the play itself.

"Garry," a sophisticated bachelor after "many moons" finally finds the girl that he wants and is engaged to marry her, but in order to smooth over some possible complications that might occur after he is married he endeavors to obtain from Mabel—one of his old sweethearts—a certain piece of delicate lingerie which in the enthusiasm of past infatuations he had given her as a present. Mabel turns out to be a little hard to see his way in the matter and he gets himself into many compromising conditions in his efforts. However, he finally succeeds in his attempt with the help of others and everything is satisfactory in the future.

Miss Fark, who took the part of "Garry" in "Who Goes Home?" will take the part of "Mabel" in this play, while "Hector," who took the part of "Garry" in "Who Goes Home?" will take the part of "Mabel" in this play, while "Hector," who took the part of "Garry" in "Who Goes Home?" will take the part of "Mabel" in this play.

There will be the usual evening performance tomorrow evening and Saturday with a Saturday matinee. Seats can be reserved for the coming performance.

BRIDE'S TROUBLES
IN MONARCH FILM

Mildred June Portrays Leading Feminine Role Opposite Robert Agnew.

"Troubles of a Bride," sounds funny enough as a movie title, but the subject gives rise to serious thought if Mildred June's opinion counts for anything. She played the leading role in the Fox picture, opposite Robert Agnew. The picture was finished at Hollywood recently.

"There wasn't an instance in that whole picture which could not actually happen to a bride," said Mildred June. "I certainly makes a girl ponder a little, if she takes into consideration all the troubles that might and sometimes do arise."

In the first place, no man ever lived, they say, who was the same in every particular, after marriage, as before. This attitude changes automatically, if not intentionally. The power of possession goes to some men more than to others, but they all get it."

Miss June, whose name and winsome beauty are suggestive of white veils and orange blossoms and Zulu-grin's wedding march, sounded what may sound like a warning to all girls. "I never had given thought to the subject, until this picture brought the possibilities right before my eyes. Then, as I played the part and realized that every trouble was a real trouble, easily possible after any wedding, I began to look at the marriage problem from a different angle. I saw just troubles all right, when the time comes, but I'll bet a new bride had that I don't have the same kind of experience by the girl in my picture."

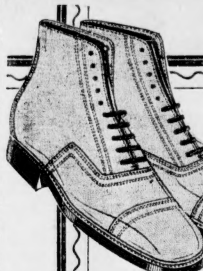

This picture will be shown at the Monarch theatre the last three days of the week.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH OCCURS AT THERIE

What was reported as the accidental death of Alfred Hammore, farmer of Thierien district Tuesday from being crushed by the fall of an engine from the top of his load of poles, is being investigated by the A.P.P. at St. Paul. The first story to reach the city is to the effect that Hammore, a married man with three children, was on the way home from town when one of his sleds loosened as he rode down through a pitch hole in the road, and he was thrown to the ground with the gas engine on top of him. Picked up by another traveller he was carried back to town to a doctor but died.

The first meeting for 1926 of the council of the Municipal District of Vancouver, No. 1, 5, held recently when the question of the dangerous traffic on a residential street was brought under discussion, and the proposed diversion by the Department of Public Works was expressed.

The Council that a committee should be appointed to investigate the matter, and to make a report to the public works to go more fully into the matter.

The committee was named by the Mayor, F. Hall and A. McLeod, and the following members:

Some further action was received since the Court of Revision has been asked to consider the further appeal should be heard, and that the Council should be made.

The question of the diversion of traffic, petitioned for by a large number of residents, was brought under discussion. The Council was of the opinion that the diversion of traffic was not in the district, although it would be greatly benefited there.

It was argued that the matter should be referred to the department of public works for diversion.

RETURNS FROM TRIP

Louis Friedman, manager of the National Home Furnishers' Association, has returned following a trip to the East, including Buffalo, N. Y., and he states that he believes that Alberta is ready for a big year's business. Furniture factories at Buffalo estimate that they will do four times the volume of business this year as compared with last year. Winnipeg was very quiet, Mr. Friedman states, and there is a marked contrast there in volume as compared with the optimism of Alberta.

Financially it amounts to the same thing whether the Provincial Government turns over to the cities a part of the profits from the sale of liquor or whether it ceases to collect revenue by means of taxes which should be left to the municipal corporations. Provided, of course, the grant is in proportion. The decision of the Government to share up the liquor profits but to keep the taxes suggests that the Ministers are not certain that the trade will yield as large a sum as is drawn from the amusement, gasoline and other taxes which the cities have been asking for. Perhaps they suspect that if they are to compete with the bootlegger they will have to cut the price of their wares until there will be little profit to divide.

There is, of course, other objection to the arrangement that it puts the cities in the position of depending upon the Government for a favor, when all they have asked is that the Government stop grabbing what they reasonably claim belong properly to them. The cities do not need any financial assistance from the Provincial treasury. All they require is that the Government remove its taxation tentacles from sources of revenue which they otherwise could tap and from which the Government has no clear and superior right to extract money. If the Government would just do what the cities could take care of themselves, and the Ministers could run the liquor branch to suit themselves and do what they pleased with the profits.

Something unusual, and very practical in the way of an effort to interest Edmonton people in a local industrial enterprise, is the decision of the city council to issue bonds to meet a part of the cost of the issue of $3,250,000 and to appeal to investors in this city and district to take up a good share of the bonds. The city council has decided to do something for an Edmonton concern to undertake to raise a large amount of capital by public subscription; still more rare that local sources were to be tapped for the purpose of raising the money. Financing business ventures on a very large scale has not been common here for a decade or so, and the city council has been the first to times that it is felt to be once more practicable to elicit the help of home buyers of such securities in any large way. The prospectus shows the comparative advantages of the bonds over the interest rate and other terms offered are attractive. If there is any considerable amount of money in the city ready for such a thing, the market for it is a strong one.

That feature of the undertaking aside, it is in every sense desirable that Edmonton money should be put to use in the most profitable way possible under the circumstances when conditions and prospects are such as to convince the owners that the venture is a safe one and likely to be profitable. All the arguments in favor of the use of the money for the purpose of money in produce concerns in Canada—instead of being put into Mexican oil wells or locked up in the hands of the speculators—show that it is in the interest of the city that money made locally should be put to reproductive use in the city itself. It is not the purpose of the industrial development upon that outside financier. All things considered he has not been niggardly in the matter. It is not his fault if there are not many more of him in the city. It is not his fault if the character in the city as is desirable. If half the money that has been "made" in Edmonton were put to use in the city, the city would reap the prize the city would be larger, employment more plentiful and financial conditions more stable. In the case of the individual who has an interest in the city, the individual must decide for himself; he takes the risk and he him to go for the profits. But the general principle that it is desirable that Edmonton money should be put to use in the city is sound. Edmonton capital is a sound one. In so far as that principle can be carried into satisfactory practice by the owners who have an interest in the city, it will be gainers.

Premier King has been reassuring some uneasy newsmen in Britain that there is no danger of the Canadian people annexing themselves to the United States. He has said that the Empire is the Empire. He expects that critics of the Government have been cultivating the contrary notion, overseas for the sake of the political reaction in Canada. He has said that he trusts the Canadians who are always waiting to tinker with the machinery of the Empire, either by setting up an Imperial Federation or an Imperial Council. And he has said that he trusts the Canadian Government, progressive leader in which that gentleman modestly intimated that if he does not get his way at Ottawa he may lose a campaign of secessionist agitation. He has said that he trusts the Canadian people when viewed from a distance and some sensitive journalists in the old lands seem to have gathered an impression that Canada is settling with disquietude on the United States. He has said that he trusts the Canadian people to be ready to commit hari kari by attaching ourselves to the neighboring republic or setting up a new national establishment on our own account.

It may be said that there are things more remote from the intentions of the Canadian people than annexation and separation but not in the realm of political probability. Canada is in the Empire to stay. First because there is no substantial reason why it should get out. And second because there are many and sufficient reasons why it should stay. In Canadians suffer no disability, political or material, by reason of their membership in the Empire. They benefit by sharing in any preferential trading arrangements which may be made. And they have the security of knowing that their rights will be protected. If a foreign invader they will get all they require. Those who foresee a danger of cleavage unless an Imperial Federation is erected or an Imperial Council created are conjuring up nightmares for their own destruction. An Imperial Federation, if built on democratic lines and for practical purposes, would be a device for the domination of the British Empire by a minority dominated by the great colored majority in matters of mutual interest. An Imperial Council would have to be a functionless ornament or a mere advisory body, without any real source of authority which now resides in the Dominion Governments and Parliaments. Canadians are not disposed to be ruled by India, nor by an executive over whose conduct they could have no voice. The British Empire must stand or fall on the merits of its own conduct. It must stand or fall on its own merits in the complete sense of the word, and leave the people in other sections of the Empire to do the same, knowing that when a crisis comes, the British Empire will stand or fall on its own merits. It will present a solid front in defence of the lives, rights and interests of whichever branch of the family happens to be threatened. "Let well enough alone" would be a richly merited motto. The vast majority of our people are content to apply to the situation.

Anyway, the hopeful daughter of the home can't work out a crossword puzzle and jazz the piano at the same time.

Canadians, it is said, lost $60,000,000 last year in betting on horse races, while in 1921 they wagered $80,000,000 on the ponies. Terrible isn't it how hard up we all are?

A German inventor has designed a boat that comes to the surface an hour after it sinks. All will be well now if he can contrive webbed feet for the sailors so they can stay on top till the ship comes up.

There was no notable response to the proposal of the deputy mayor that business firms should hire men to shovel off the sidewalks. Perhaps the taxpayers felt that they were already paying to have such work done but that the city council was otherwise disposing of the money.

Death has taken W. D. Scott, for many years superintendent of immigration. Mr. Scott was head of the department in the years when railway construction opened the central portions of the prairie provinces to settlement, and to his energetic administration was due much of the success in getting homesteaders to fill up the "great lone land" between Saskatoon and Edmonton.

A few years ago the buffalo was all but extinct. Now the Dominion Government has so many of them that they cannot find pasture in the Wainwright park and a thousand head are to be taken north and turned loose in the wilds. It is to be hoped that a sufficient body of police will also be turned loose in the same vicinity, to see that the Indians do not cultivate a notion that the old days of free-for-all slaughter have returned.

If the airplane can rush a supply of anti-toxin to the isolated communities in Alaska which are being depopulated by diphtheria the achievement will be the most important in the peace time record of the flying machine. "Hopping" the Atlantic was a spectacular performance, and not without value as an aid to the evolution of the new craft but not to be classed with that of staying a deadly epidemic in places otherwise beyond reach of help.

Hamilton manufacturers have endorsed the idea that a duty should be placed on coal sufficient to keep U.S. mines from cutting into the Canadian market. Should that be done the manufacturers will, of course, add the increase in price of coal—if any—to the selling prices of their products and pass the tax along to the consumer. None the less, they are consistent in backing protection for others as they demand it for themselves. Alberta miners have not asked for a duty, but if the Ontario coal users is minded to put a wall between himself and the Pennsylvania mines they can scarcely be expected to object.

A Canadian official pointed out to a Chicago audience that only in manufacturing and mining has the United States experienced a greater development than Canada—difference in population considered. In agriculture, the utilization of forest products fishing and water power development the Dominion leads the Republic. If he would make that same speech at Montreal and a few other Canadian centres which disseminate whispers of death and general debility it would help to establish a wider and more wholesome understanding of the position, achievements and prospects of Canada.

From the files of the Daily Bulletin, January 29, 1905.

The Calgary Albertian in a recent issue devotes a column to an attack on the city of Edmonton and to the Bullfinch for its attitude in taking the lead in the fight for the capital city of the proposed new western province. The southern paper claims that Edmonton is not the centre of a vast territory, and that its location has not the advantages which Calgary has at the present time. The Albertian states:

"But the Edmonton Bullfinch refers to the vast country north of Edmonton, which some day may develop into a wonderful land. There is no Peace River country at the present time and until it is, it would be unwise to count upon it as a factor in determining the cap-

As a matter of fact Calgary has only one Transcontinental line, the C.P.R., and a branch line north and south, while Edmonton has written contracts that both the C.N.R. and G.T.P. will pass through Edmonton on the completion of their lines.

The proposed $20 dairy license on all dealers of milk and cream in the city is meeting with considerable resentment by many in the city. The five large dairies in the city petitioned for the fee, but the many small purveyors have objected as they say that it would practically be a monopoly for the larger dealers.

A. C. Fraser's rink, which recently went to Calgary for the bonspiel there, returned with the Walkerville trophy, the Brewing Co.'s trophy, and won second in the Grand Challenge and third in the Visitors' Competition.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: "Art is supposed to be international. Great art may be, but all art is national, too. Shakespeare is Anglo, Beethoven is Teutonic, Wagner is Teutonic. And suppression in the United States of the best dramatic encouragement of Latin music and Teutonic opera, is deliberate discouragement of American genius. Naturally, how could it be otherwise? The cultivated American for a generation has been striving to become a cosmopolite, aesthetically. But there really isn't such a thing, and all he has managed to achieve is a sorry melange of Italian, German, French, Russian, and English influences. Curiously, he is neither fish, fowl, flesh, nor good red herring. He is culturally a freak, or better, a scream."

WANTS THAT EMBARGO
On the Editors of the Nation

The Editor of the Bulletin: A million cords of pulp wood, exported at $1.30 per cord, brings Canada $130,000,000, which is equal to one cent per pound, and since we never get anything more from it, manufactured here into crude alkali stock, it would export at six cents per pound or $16,000,000,000, further refined into newsprint, it would export at six cents per pound or $18,000,000,000, in pulp wood, if we have one case bringing us $1,000,000 distributed among the timber owners and 25,000 settlers, in the other case the $10,000,000 would be distributed to the limit owners and settlers just the same and in addition, half of the remaining $250,000,000 would be distributed among the laborers, mechanics and artisans of Canada and the other half in overheads. Surely this is a sufficient reason for an immediate embargo on pulp wood, until it is manufactured, at least up to the newsprint stage and perhaps to the next stage of commercial paper at 12 cents per pound or book print at least from 25 cents to 80 cents per pound.

Life Insurance has taken on a new importance. Everybody needs it, most people want it,—it is everybody's friend. As a result, people are asking themselves today:

"Am I insurable?"
 "How can I get sufficient life insurance?"
 and the answer is found in the ever-increasing number of policies now being applied for.

There is a foundation for this success: The general public is rapidly coming to realize the solid basis upon which life insurance rests; that the business is subject to a rigid system of Government inspection; and that while Life Insurance is a form of organized sharing of each other's burdens, it is managed on a sound business basis.

PAINS IN BACK AND SIDE

Ended by Taking Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Fussler, Sask.—"For two or three days very so often I would have said I was in pain in my back and sides that I could not do anything could I have lived in a bed and my back ached, too. I was this way about three years, but was worse after I was married. I was on a farm and not a house nearer than five miles and there was no one to give me advice. I was told to follow me to my sister-in-law told me about Lyco-Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told me to try it. I took her advice and have been thankful for it ever since. After taking the medicine for three months my back helped me a lot and I am doing fine. I am glad to recommend the Vegetable Compound to others and you may publish my testimonial."—MRS.
